Sevilla, España

November 8–11, 2006

For almost 60 years, CIEE has gathered people together to explore the methods and challenges of bringing language and culture to students, so please join us for the 2006 CIEE Conference on International Educational Exchange. Meet CIEE, international education leaders, and colleagues in Seville, Spain to discuss ways to maximize student learning outcomes. How can we develop programs that encourage students to make the most of their international education experiences? In what ways can partnerships between U.S. and overseas organizations promote learning? How can we evaluate—and heighten—the impact the local environment has on students' education? We've based this year's dialogue in Seville, a city where people have long made the most of their proximity to one another to develop a mosaic of distinct cultures that have enriched Andalusia's art, architecture, and traditions. In the hands of these people of different heritages—Christian, Jewish, and Muslim—decorative arts like ceramic tiles have taken many shapes and taken on many subjects; composed into a mosaic, the tiles well represent the way those cultures have come together to become one: Sevilliano. Prepare to discuss international education issues such as:

- Student Learning Outcomes: Identifying Goals and Measuring Success
- Impact of the Local Environment on Student Learning: Homestays, Community Service, Internships
- Increasing the Effectiveness of Language Learning Through Technology
- Developing Community-Based Programming
- Influence of U.S. Students on Host Communities
- Collaboration Between U.S. Colleges/Universities and International Institutions

Region-specific study abroad destinations, scholarship and grant opportunities, and relevant developments in Washington, D.C. will also be covered.

WHO SHOULD ATTEND?

Anyone seeking to interact with international education colleagues, expand their knowledge, and share ideas. Attendees will include:

- Study abroad advisors
- Deans of international affairs
- Language and international program faculty
- College and university presidents
- Representatives from international associations
- Government personnel
- Graduate students
- Resident Directors for U.S. students abroad

SCHEDULE

Pre-conference sessions will start on the morning of Wednesday, November 8; the opening reception will be held that evening. The conference concludes on Saturday, November 11.

PARTICIPATE

Submit a Session Proposal. CIEE wants your session proposals on the theme of "Making the Most: Seizing Every Opportunity to Learn Abroad," professional development topics, or any subject of interest to the international education community. General sessions should focus on concepts, theories, issues, problems, solutions, or controversies—not on case studies or descriptions of programs at a single institution.

If you wish to spotlight efforts at a single institution, please submit a proposal to be part of our Campus Close-Up series. The standard format is a presentation given by two to four speakers, with 15 minutes of questions/audience discussion. Alternative formats, such as panel discussions, breakout/working groups, debates, and poster sessions are warmly welcomed. Sessions are 75 minutes long. All proposals should include:

- Session title
- Session description (200–400 words)
- Chair and presenters, including institutional affiliations and contact information
- Session format and audio-visual requirements
- Proposer's name, institution, address, telephone, fax, and e-mail

Please e-mail proposals to conference2006@ciee.org by February 1, 2006.

Exhibit in the Information Hall, where special events and coffee breaks will be held. Return the reply card for an exhibitor kit or visit www.ciee.org/conference for more information.
