thoughts from abroad

Positioned at the crossroads of globalization and ancient tradition, Jordan is a textbook example of the challenges a society faces as it endeavors to modernize without losing its own cultural heritage. In the past two decades, Jordan has undergone rapid socialization, economic, and political change, evident in the ever-expanding boundaries of Amman, its capital city. Where else in the world can you surf the Internet at a mall wireless hot spot next to a fully veiled woman using her laptop to study the Koran? What is so amazing about Jordan is this rapid change and melding of cultures and civilizations is actually a continuation of its own history. One needs only to visit the complex ruins of the Jerash metropolis or Petra—an ancient capital of global trade—to recognize that the transition Jordan is going through today is a continuation of its own heritage. By coming to Jordan, you become part of Jordan's legacy of both continuity and change.

— Allison Hodgkins, Resident Director

About the Resident Director

A native of Maine, Dr. Allison Hodgkins has more than ten years experience in the Middle East. Her research interests focus on peace and conflict in the region. Allison has lectured in departments of Political Science and International Studies and previously served as Academic Director for a Peace and Conflict study abroad program in Palestine and Jordan. She holds a Ph.D. in International Affairs from The Fletcher School of Law and Diplomacy at Tufts University an M.A. in Public Affairs (Lyndon Baines Johnson School), Middle Eastern Studies (University of Texas at Austin), and a B.S. in Political Science (Bates College).

About the Director of Arabic Instruction

Dr. Najeh Abu-Orabi manages the language component of the program in coordination with the University of Jordan. He has a Ph.D. in Arabic Language Curricula and Education Methods and an M.A. in Arabic Language. Dr. Abu-Orabi has also taught Arabic at the University of Virginia.

About Other CIEE Staff

Rana Masri, Resident Coordinator, supports the Resident Director in administrative matters. She brings valuable knowledge about Amman and Jordan to CIEE, having previously worked for a tour company in Jordan. Stephen Bush, Student Services Manager, received his M.A. in Middle Eastern Studies from the University of Texas at Austin. He has lived and studied in various locations in the Middle East. Jennifer Adcox, Resident Coordinator, works on a variety of student services issues. Jennifer is a graduate of the University of Tennessee at Knoxville and has lived in Amman for 12 years. She has worked with various local organizations, publications, and advertising agencies during her time in Jordan. Rasha Mustafa, Program Assistant, is a graduate of the University of Jordan in foreign languages. She has worked with CIEE as a student intern since 2008. CIEE also recruits CIEE Student Program Assistants—University of Jordan undergraduates who offer administrative support, general advice, and assistance to help students acclimate to life at the University of Jordan.

about amman

Amman has a history that reaches back at least 5,000 years. Despite the ancient ruins that dominate the downtown skyline, much of the city only dates back to the 1970s. Draped over several hills, Amman is a study in contrasts. A traditional downtown souk (marketplace) is a taxi ride away from massive, American-style shopping malls. It is a very accessible, cosmopolitan city with numerous museums, art galleries, theaters, and cinemas. With its reputation for security and hospitality, Amman is home to inhabitants from all over the Middle East. The city provides a safe and stable environment for students to learn about the region.

academics

Academic Program

The CIEE Arabic Language summer program is designed for intensive language acquisition. The Arabic language skills of participants greatly improve through their required courses, interaction with Peer Language Tutors, and participation in CIEE language and culture clubs.

Academic Culture

This is a rigorous program for focused students seeking the opportunity to begin learning Arabic or to continue their studies. The number of daily contact hours is high, and attendance is required. Instructors are natives of Jordan and reflect local cultural norms in their classroom demeanor and pedagogy. Students must expect a more formal classroom environment and take initiative in understanding instructors' expectations. Language classes are held five days a week for four hours daily. Instructors have office hours for students with questions and in need of extra help.

Nature of Classes

Participants take classes with other CIEE students only.

Language Environment

As students gain proficiency in Arabic, Resident Staff encourage them to use their language skills in everyday settings. This fosters a learning community that contributes to both Arabic language proficiency and understanding of Jordanian society.

Grading System

Grades (A–F with pluses and minuses on a 100 point scale) are assigned based on mid-term and final exams and, depending on the course, additional assignments such as a research paper or a class presentation. Attendance and class participation are also incorporated into the final grade for the program courses. Attendance is mandatory for all classes.

where you'll study

Founded in 1962, the University of Jordan is the oldest public four-year institution of higher education in Jordan. The University has 13 academic faculties, 65 academic departments, and a diverse student body of nearly 35,000, including 1,800 international students. The CIEE Study Center is located opposite the main gate of the University and offers students a wide range of support, library, and advising services. CIEE has an additional office in the University of Jordan's Language Center. CIEE students have access to all major campus facilities, including the library and campus computer labs. Classes are held throughout the University Campus.

Housing and Meals

Participants live with other CIEE students in local apartments. Students need to budget for all meals as they are not included in the program fee. However, lunch is provided for students during orientation and CIEE-sponsored excursions. Students receive a stipend to be used for transportation to and from campus. CIEE housing in Jordan requires students to make adjustments to the host culture, including curfews, limits on guests, and decorum. Apartments have limits on visitors and quiet hours for safety purposes and deference to local norms.

Orientation

The program begins with a mandatory two-day orientation program that introduces students to the academic program, to the fundamentals of intercultural communication, and to practical information about living in Jordan. Orientation also includes a health and safety component. Ongoing support is provided on an individual and group basis throughout the program.

Internet

Students have full access to the computer and Internet facilities at the University of Jordan, which includes several wireless areas. In addition, program participants are eligible to enroll in the TAGKS, the Talal Abu-Ghazaleh Knowledge Society, a private student center that offers a modern computer lab, wireless, printing, photocopying services, and a small cafeteria to students at the University of Jordan. Internet cafés are also a convenient and inexpensive option. The Internet is not as fast or readily accessible as in the United States. Students do not have access to the Internet in their apartments.

eligibility

- Overall GPA 2.75
- 0–6 semesters of college-level Arabic or equivalent

duration

7 weeks: early June–mid-July

culture

Cultural Activities and Field Trips

The academic program is supplemented with excursions to Jordan's archaeological, historical, and natural wonders. The program includes various day trips to Jordan's biblical sites, Roman heritage sites, and desert castles. The program also includes one overnight trip to Petra or Wadi Rum. CIEE Resident Staff keep students up-to-date on local cultural events, including films, concerts, and conferences.

Independent Travel

Students are encouraged to travel independently throughout Jordan on weekends. Any travel outside of Jordan is only permitted after students complete the CIEE Amman Independent Travel form, sign a CIEE independent travel waiver, and review potential security or safety concerns with the CIEE Resident Director. Students are also expected to consult their home institution and emergency contacts about their plans for independent travel outside of Jordan.

Peer Language Tutors

CIEE recruits University of Jordan students from the faculty of Foreign Languages to serve as Peer Language Tutors. Students are matched according to language ability and interests when possible. Students are briefed on expectations and are expected to commit up to three hours a week to meet with their Peer Language Tutor on campus for conversation and assistance with their Arabic. This program facilitates interaction with local peers and offers students insights into campus life.

Language and Culture Clubs

Each weekday, students have the opportunity to attend a different club. These clubs allow students to work on specific skills or explore cultural or artistic aspects of the language in a non-graded, non-credit setting. Clubs may include songs and music (building word families), colloquial conversation, calligraphy, and culture.

coursework

Program Requirements

All students are required to take Modern Standard Arabic and Jordanian Colloquial Arabic. Students with no background in Arabic are automatically enrolled in Beginning I. All other students are assigned based on the results of a placement exam taken upon arrival. The CIEE Director of Arabic Instruction makes the final determination of which level is most appropriate in consultation with the instructors and the student.

Credit

Total recommended credit for the summer program is 7 semester/10.5 quarter hours.

Contact hours are 90 for the Modern Standard Arabic course and 45 for the Colloquial Jordanian Arabic course.

Languages of Instruction

Arabic, English

Faculty

All courses are taught under the direction of Dr. Najeh Abu-Orabi and by instructors hired by the University of Jordan.

ARAB 2001 AMSU Arabic Language, Intermediate Arabic I

ARAB 2002 AMSU Arabic Language, Intermediate Arabic II

ARAB 3001 AMSU Arabic Language, Advanced Arabic I

ARAB 3002 AMSU Arabic Language, Advanced Arabic II

Students are placed into the appropriate Modern Standard Arabic (MSA) level based on the results of a language exam taken during orientation. In addition to the regular classroom and lab sessions, students also have access to instructors for regular office hours. Contact hours: 90. Recommended credit: 4 semester/6 quarter hours.

ARAB 1003 AMSU

Colloquial Jordanian Arabic, Beginning I

Essential for functioning in everyday life, Colloquial Jordanian Arabic is the language of spoken communication and is used in domestic, intimate, and informal settings in the home, the workplace, and among friends and acquaintances. This course introduces students to the grammar and vocabulary of the Jordanian dialect and builds on the instruction provided in the Modern Standard Arabic language course. This course includes intensive portions during orientation to impart basic survival skills, then continues with regular classroom sessions. Contact hours: 45. Recommended credit: 3 semester/4.5 quarter hours.

Colloquial Jordanian Arabic, Intermediate I

This course offers an opportunity for students with prior knowledge of colloquial dialect to continue expanding their communicative abilities. It focuses on the grammar and vocabulary of the Jordanian dialect and builds on the instruction in the Modern Standard Arabic course. This course includes intensive portions during orientation to impart basic survival skills, then continues with regular classroom sessions. Contact hours: 45. Recommended credit: 3 semester/4.5 quarter hours.

a student's story

It's hard to pick just one specific story from the time I spent in Amman, Jordan with CIEE. Filled with so many amazing people, places, and learning experiences, it all blurs together into one of the best decisions I have ever made. But, if I had to pick something that constantly comes to mind, it's the natural environment. From camping in the Wadi Rum to swimming in the Dead Sea to repelling down waterfalls at Wadi Mujib and hiking in the lush scenery of Wadi Dana, I felt like I had hit an ecological jackpot. In combination with being in the heart of one of the most interesting, historical, and politically relevant regions of the world, Amman gave me an incredibly well-rounded study abroad experience. I wouldn't trade it for anything.
